

CLEAN AIR ACTION GROUP

Helping women to combat air pollution from household heating

2023
2024

Hungary

Project summary

The purpose of this project was to help people who experience problems with air pollution, with eco-counselling. With the help of the received funding, CAAG was able to expand their capacity.

Judit Szegő

Project manager Clean Air Action Group

"We are delighted to be involved in this project, it gives us many opportunities to work on the issue that is most important to us."

Achievements

203 people reached out and were helped with eco-counselling.

The project increased CAAG's capacity and they were able to contact several local and environmental authorities and aim to contact more than 3000 local municipalities with suggestions for improving air quality in relation to heating in September 2024, before the start of the heating season.

CAAG used social and traditional media to inform people about air pollution and related issues.